Lesson Learnt From Tuning Project Regarding Program

With evaluation
- The Tuning project has provided a foundation for quality enhancement by developing appropriate transparency tools and a dialogue with stakeholders.
- The Tuning project gives us two terms ‘fitness for purpose’ and ‘fitness of purpose’.
- Tuning holds that quality in programme design and delivery means guaranteeing both “fitness for purpose” (i.e. suitability for achieving the declared aims of each programme), and “fitness of purpose” (i.e. suitability of the aims of each programme: these should meet the expectations of students, academic staff, employers).
